WINTER IS COMING

It's time to weatherize for winter. The Farmer's Almanac forecasts this winter to be above normal snowfall and cold. All city parks will close for reservations on October 15th and will reopen April 15th.

The pressurized irrigation system will be shut down and weatherized the first part of October. Make sure to weatherize your individual irrigation systems as well.

Autumn provides optimum weather and ample opportunity to garden. It's harvest time, and the cooler temperatures and fall conditions can actually make gardening easier and more enjoyable. Fall is a great time to plant bulbs to blossom next spring. It's also time to pull weeds before they go to seed.

Fluff any compacted soil with a garden fork or tiller. Adding a 2-inch layer of bagged compost or a balanced, natural fertilizer can give plants a boost come spring.

Be prepared for frost. Keep materials on hand to protect plants when frost threatens, such as floating row cover or a cold frame. On frosty, cold nights, move container plants to a protected spot.

This is the time of year to deep soak trees, especially new trees, to a depth of 10-12", unless there is 1-2" of good soaking rain. This will prepare the trees for winter. If you expect a colder winter consider wrapping specialty trees so they don't split. It's also a good time to prune as temperatures cool. Prune for structure, as well as to remove any dead or diseased branches. Happy autumn gardening!
